

Table 2.3.2. Alignment of the First and Emergency Aid Program Educational Objectives with the University's Core Missions

Program Educational Objectives	University's Core Missions
	To provide accredited education and training services at international standards	To produce innovative knowledge and technology through R&D activities and to translate the knowledge and technology produced into societal benefit	To be a leader in its fields of activity, committed to core values, and environmentally responsible
Objective 1. To possess up-to-date, evidence-based knowledge, skills, and behaviors; to follow innovations in science and technology; and, by embracing lifelong learning to continually improve and renew oneself, to track changes and developments in order to fulfill the roles and functions of Emergency Medical Services	√		√
Objective 2. To meet the prehospital healthcare needs of individuals, families, and society by using information and health technologies in line with professional requirements and with a holistic approach	√	√	√
Objective 3. To take roles in education, management, and research in the field of Emergency Medical Services by carrying out duties, authority, and responsibilities in accordance with professional values and ethical principles		√	√
Objective 4. To have the awareness and ability to work collaboratively in performing roles and functions—primarily with one's own team members and also across other health disciplines		√	√